KNIGHTS OF PYTHIAS.

Supreme Chancellor Van Volkenburg's Reply to Toronto's Address of Welcome.

An Able, Eloquent Speech Bristling with Facts—Where Canadians are to be Found.

Americans from every portion of the union visited Ontario last week in vast numbers. In London thousands of Knights of Labor congregated there during the annual session of the grand lodge of that now powerful organization, all of whom spoke in the highest praise of the Forest City's treatment and the hospitality extended to its visitors. The visiting brethren left with the most exalted impressions that Canada was not the cold, inhospitable land it was represented and believed by many to be. In fact, their opinion was that the section surrounding London was possibly unrivaled as an agricultural locality anywhere else on this continent.

THE KNIGHTS OF PYTHIAS

this year held their annual gathering of the Supreme Lodge in Toronto, at which representatives from almost every lodge in the union and throughout Canada were present. For some time back extensive preparations had been made for the reception and entertainment of this influential association. From every quarter of the continent came train load after train load, comprising Pullman and other palace cars by the dozen in each train. It was indeed an important event for Canada's Queen City, which put on her very best appearance during the occasion. The liberal display of bunting and the attractive uniform of the Knights gave Toronto for a few days quite a holiday appearance. The weather was charming throughout. Many of the visitors came hundreds of miles to be present, and the great majority were people who were never in Canada before; many indeed had never set foot on British soil. In the United States there are thousands of Canadians who always take a lively interest in everything that concerns their own country. When public questions arise they are able to put forward the Canadian side. This is an advantage in its way although we should all be better pleased if the Canadians in the States could find employment on this side of the boundary line, as we do not like to lose our own people. But on this side the line there are thousands of Americans who have formed social and business connections, and they help to make up for those whom we have lost. The continent is big enough to afford room for everybody, and there is reason for congratulation all round that the people of neighboring nations can meet on such good terms, even although their forefathers did have a little misunderstanding a hundred years ago. All this is forgotten now, and some of our foremost men look forward to the day when all English-speaking people will form a grand federation and exert their civilizing influences for the benefit of Christianity over the whole world. The British empire and the American republic would make a strong team.

THE SUPREME CHANCELLOR'S REPLY.

The Hon. John Van Valkenburg, of Iowa, Supreme Chancellor of the order, and a Canadian by birth, made an eloquent reply to the address of welcome from the city of Toronto. He extoled the Queen city's position and the numerous institutions, and the warm and enthusiastic reception given them by every one, all of which convinced that the effect of the teachings, practices and usages of our rapidly growing order is to obliterate all geographical lines and territorial boundaries and to cement in one common family this vast array of people whose hearts are swayed by the magical power of the sweet trinity of words which our founder so wisely selected as our motto. The Knights were not in their midst armed with the panoply of war to lay waste your powerful homes and despoil you of your riches, but we are here to plan and legislate for the betterment of the condition of the human race, and to confer the richest benefactions on our fellow-men in the sacred names of and in all our deliberations recognizing no north, no south, no east, no west. We have looked forward to this biennial meeting and greeting for many months said the Chancellor, with intense interest and most pleasurable anticipation, and as we meet face to face a benefit Providence has vouchsafed to us a happy, prosperous and united brotherhood from ocean to ocean, and from the icy regions of the north to the flowery Savannahs of the sunny South and even to the "Isles of the Sea." Although we are called "Knights," still we belong to the "Kingdom of Peace." From those five humble and unpretentious men who laid strong and deep the corner-stone of this grand humanitarian movement we have in a little over two decades increased to an army of 180,000 souls, with 47 grand jurisdictions and castle halls, bound together by the electric chain of friendship, honor, charity, purity and benevolence. These characters recognized the doctrine that however human laws and human institutions may change and decay the moral is innate and imperishable and underlies the whole structure of society in all its organized forms and incorporated in our ritual, charges and lectures like so many threads of gold the friendship and highest type of morality as drawn from the example of our illustrious prototypes, divine revelation and from the loftiest deductions of human reason and philosophy.

PYTHIAN KNIGHTHOOD

is one of the brightest jewels in the crown of our civilization. Its beauty is only seen when painted like the rainbow on the dark clouds of misfortune, misery and death that are written in fearful emblems on the broad face of creation and on the "pestilence that walketh in darkness and wasteth an noon-day." It embosoms an idea that like a plant hidden under the snow during the ordinary days of life is unseen, but when the heart is still and the strong arm lifeless and women and little children are wrapped in silence and sorrow, then the hidden plant awakens and puts forth leaves as if the season of human want, suffering and bereavement were in its natural spring-time. Our institution is but the natural outgrowth of the social element in man's nature impressed on his organism by his Creator, and is therefore deep and universal. The great charitable orders are paving the way for a steady, genuine growth of social, political and commercial relations between your people and ours, and were it not for the custom house, which confront the traveler on the boundary lines, one could hardly realize that he had passed into another and different land. (Applause.) There is a constant interchange of business and emigration going on from the one land to the other, and your people are now largely allied with all the varied American commercial, mercantile and industrial interests. Of the same race, speaking the same language, kneeling at the same altars, laws drawn from the same fountain, glorying in the same grand old traditions, living side by side, separated only by an imaginary line, controlled by the same chivalric influences, why should not the bonds that unite us be more closely cemented and become more indissoluble as the years come and go? (Cheers.)

THE GREAT GLADSTONE

and the silver-tongued orator Bright never tire in their splendid eulogies on the manifest destiny of the American Republic. These truly representative men of a grand Empire have often referred to America in words of burning eloquence depicting the possibilities of our country in glowing terms. Your own Governor-General in his prorogation speech neatly and appropriately acknowledged our kindly intervention during your Indian trouble in holding the Indians in check along the Mootana frontier. The signs of the times clearly indicate that the fraternal associations are drawing the civilized races of mankind into nearer and dearer relations day by day, and that these heaven-ordained influences will continue until all prejudices, envy and caste shall be entirely eliminated from society, and all shall dwell together in harmony, and the clangour of arms and the sounds of discord shall be heard on earth no more forever. (Cheers.) Next to religion, we believe Pythianism the best institution which Providence has given to men for the amelioration of his moral and social nature. Prizing it thus sacredly, a pious regard to the purity of its purposes has been most religiously inculcated with us, and in the attainment of this desideratum anxious efforts have been made from time to time to lop from it every excrescence and disembarrass it from all extraneous habits and customs which were not strictly auxiliary to its benevolent purposes, and more particularly to divest it of all practices which were at war with its first principles and were calculated to bring it into disrepute and odium. (Cheers.) There is a strong, deep and undisguised sentiment of sympathy amongst Americans with

THE STRUGGLING MASSES

of the "Land of the Shamrock" and their champions in the herculean efforts to establish Home Rule. It is a time of war of "classes against masses," as the great Premier of England truly and aptly puts it. Our grand young order, although in no sense a political organization, but being controlled by the spirit of justice, fraternity and equality, necessarily and naturally sympathizes with all persons seeking self-government, and resolutely opposes all forms of Socialism, Communism and outlawry. We have made the matchless incident of unsullied friendship of Grecian story the inspiration of our youthful order. (Cheers.) It is a gem which, though it be not as brilliant as when it first gleamed in the fair garden of Eden, serves to make our cold world brighter, better and happier from its light. These social intermingling and alliances are the germs of friendship and brotherhood, and these secret charitable orders unite with the churches, schools, colleges and universities as powerful educating, Christianizing and civilizing agencies appealing to our better natures and necessarily elevating us to a higher plane of manhood. (Cheers.) Our lives are but a succession of inspirations from the cradle to the grave. To the devoted Christian the sublime spectacle of a crucified Saviour as an atonement for the sins of the world is a perennial source of inspiration and prompts him to constant and devout acts of worship and sacrifice, and also prompts him to perform myraid acts of kindness and relief towards his fellow men. (Cheers.) To the intelligent, honest and faithful Oddfellow the noble illustration of pure and unalloyed love that existed between David and Jonathan, an example radiant with immortal beauty, shines as a fixed star shedding an unfading light o'er his pathway. To

THE CHIVALRIC PYTHIAN KNIGHT

of our land as his gazes far back into classical lore, his soul is enamoured with the bewildering brilliancy and surpassing beauty of the supreme affection between Damon and Phytias. The beautiful and symmetrical character of the noble Queen of England acts as an inspiration upon the lives of her loyal subjects. (Cheers.) Her sweet, gentle and loving home-life has proven a well-spring of inspiration to the women of the realm, and the tides and pulses of her devoted Christian life run through the daily lives of her subjects wherever found beneath the circuit of the sun, so that the religious life of the English people is deep, genuine and fervent, thoroughly a heart offering challenging the admiration of the world. These great counter or repellant forces to pride, avarice and selfishness must be nourished, cherished and fortified through the organization and faithful maintenance of these secret societies. (Cheers.) We create an under current of friendship, honor, charity, hope, faith, purity, love and benevolence which tends to make men more friendly, more honorable, more Christian, more faithful, more levable, more hopeful, more pure, more benevolent and more devoted to home and family. In our own day and in our own land and by our own members this undying friendship, one for the other, which has caused our patron saint to exclaim:—

"'Tis sweet to die for those we love"—

(cheers)—has been illustrated in the life and death of a Hines, a Woodland, a Reynolds and a Mestamaker. (Cheers.) These sacrifices are but history repeating itself, and demonstrate the wonderful influence of noble example. That was that the illustrious Gladstone told to parliament of the death of Princess Alice. Her little boy lay sick of diphtheria. When he suffered most discomfort there was nothing so soothing as the soft velvet hand of his mother smoothing the hair from his temples. The Princess watched her darling night and day. No hired nurse, no kind friend, no relative could take her place. The doctors feared contagion. They warned the Princess against inhaling the breath of the little patient, but all to no purpose. The mother bent over the little fellow, and literally lost herself in his distress. When the baby boy drew near his end he lifted up his feeble voice and said, plaintively, "Mamma, Mamma, kiss me." The physicians, standing near, protested. They begged and implored her Royal Highness not to do it. They prophesied it would cause her own death, and they were correct. None the less the motherly instinct was supreme. The Princess kissed the pale lips of her dying boy, and cheerfully paid the price of her devotion in a speedy illness and sudden death. This splendid exemplification of a mother's love is of more value to our race than the wealth of Ormus or of Ind, showing how fervent, deep and stainless as an angel's wing such maternal affection is. These examples shed a dazzling brilliancy over life's rugged pathway and tend to demonstrate that

A TOUCHING STORY

"Life is real, life is earnest
And the grave is not its goal,
Dust thou art, to dust returnest,
Was not spoken of the soul."

Now, my friends of the "Land of the Maple Leaf" and from every quarter of

THE DOMINION OF CANADA,

again allow me to express the grateful tributes of the hearts of every knight within the circle of the Supreme jurisdiction for this kindly welcome and princely reception. We do not wonder now that you have an honest pride in this charming metropolitan city. The legislative and judicial centre of your splendid province—the most important factor in the Dominion of Canada, as formed less than two decades since. Our people have never so fully appreciated your wide domain—comprising as it does over 3,000,000 square miles of territory and covering over one-third of the entire area of the British Empire—and including nearly one-half of this continent. Without including the area covered by the great lakes, there are 3,460,392 square miles or about 40 per cent. of the area of the whole British Empire. England, Ireland and Scotland form an area of 88,000 square miles. You could cut forty such areas out of Canada. New South Wales contains 309,175 square miles, and it is larger by 162 square miles than France, Continental Italy and Sicily. Canada would make eleven countries the size of New South Wales. There are (in extent) three British Indias in Canada, and still enough left over to make a Queensland and a Victoria. The German Empire could be carved out of Canada and fifteen more countries the same size. We are glad to be able to state that of the seven provinces comprising the Dominion of Canada

WE HAVE PYTHIAN LODGES

in all except Quebec, and Grand Lodges in Ontario and New Brunswick, Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island, with the certainty of a Grand Lodge in the Province of Manitoba in the near future. With a commerce traversing nearly every sea, the fourth maritime power of the world, with untold mineral and agricultural wealth, with great lines of railway like so many pulsating arteries on the land, the enterprising emigrant wending his way over soil, prairies and forests where the moose and deer have roamed undisturbed for centuries, the territory belonging to the second of American powers—the land of magnificent distances—with crystal lakes, flashing like jewels upon the bosom of beauty, who can fully estimate its glorious destiny? (Cheers.) And now a word to you, as the distinguished and chosen representative of Ontario knights and her suberb citizens. You are a "King" by name and a "King" by nature, as I have reason to know from a long a close acquaintance with you. You promised us, in my presence and hearing, at New Orleans in April, 1884, the protection of the British flag and the accordance of a true Canadian welcome. You and your large-hearted colleagues have fully redeemed the pledges so made, and in the name of 180,000 knights, brave, loyal and true, I hereby tender you, and through you, the Lieutenant-Governor of this province, Mayor and Council of Toronto and Pythian knights and citizens of Ontario our warmest thanks and sincerest acknowledgments, for this princely and most royal welcome. Your pleasant reminder that I am now on my native heath, the land of my birth, recalls to my memory in vivid colors the many pleasant scenes, incidents and bounding joys of my childhood days:—

SUPREME PRELATE KING,

How dear to my heart are the scenes of my childhood,
When fond recollection presents them to view;
The orchard, the meadow, the deep tangled wild wood,
And every loved spot which my infancy knew.

There are many of us here to-night who have returned again to visit

THE LAND THAT GAVE US BIRTH.

Does this vast audience realize that nearly 800,000 Canadians now dwell within the limits of the American Republic, distributed as follows, to wit:—Minnesota, 48,000; Dakota, 25,000; Wisconsin, 45,000; Iowa, 60,000; Illinois, 50,000; Michigan, 188,000; Missouri, 15,000; Nebraska, 10,000; California, 25,000; New England States, 200,000; Indiana, 15,000; Oregon, 15,000; New York, 40,000; Kansas, 45,000; Texas 10,000? In conclusion, allow me to say that we now have

47 GRAND JURISDICTIONS,

180,000 members, 131 Divisions of the Uniform Rank with a membership of 15,000, 100 sections of the Endowment Rank having paid since its organization through this branch of the order the magnificent sum of $3,384,175.85 to the widows and orphans of deceased knights with peace and harmony reigning supreme throughout our borders, and you may well claim that it is a high honor to be the chief executive officer of such an order. Now, with the Union Jack, Star and Stripes and the Tri-Color banners floating o'er us, all unite in showing our generous, warm and heartfelt appreciation of the splendid, royal and generous welcome accorded to us by our Toronto knights and their friends.

A MAGNIFICENT ACT OF FAITH.

Writing of the Canadian Pacific Railway lately the London Times said: "The conception of a transcontinental railway was a magnificent act of faith on the part of the Canadian Dominion. The Dominion contains a population of under 5 millions of people, and its area consists of nearly 3½ millions of square miles. In Manitoba the population only amounts to 1 person in 2 square miles, in British Columbia only to 1 in 7, and in the territories only to 1 in 40 square miles. Such a population, inhabiting so vast a territory, has manifested so profound a faith in its own future that it has conceived and executed, within a few years, a work which a generation ago might well have appalled the wealthiest and most powerful of nations."

The London Telegraph adds: If Sir John Macdonald and his Canadian contemporaries have not miscalculated the future, the money laid out upon the new transcontinental line will increase, multiply and replenish the earth. Anyhow, the difficulties which have just been successfully surmounted by the engineers of the Canadian Pacific Railway deserve to be named with pride by that large and increasing section of mankind, the Anglo-Saxon races.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

THE $75,000 LOAN—A GOOD SUGGESTION.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE TIMES:

SIR:—Some few days since a communication appeared in the Standard, disapproving of this proposed loan. Now nothing is more likely than such disapproval will lead to communications in other portions of the press in favor of the passing of this by-law. It appears to me the discussion of this important matter by such communications is by no means the proper and legitimate mode of dealing with the question; but that the more rational mode would be for the Mayor to convene a public meeting, not of the citizens, but of the rate-payers, at the City Hall, to take the matter into consideration. PRO BONO PUBLICO.

THE ELECTIONS IN KOOTENAY.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE TIMES:

SIR:—Now that the elections are over, the results in this district as shown by the footings, Baker 111, Brown 74, spoiled ballots 85, Baker's majority, 37, is loudly proclaimed as "a triumphant endorsement of the government, a guarantee of unlimited confidence," etc. Let us see how these boasts are justifiable. A government seeking a new lease of power from the people are not perhaps directly charged with the means used by its individual supporters as candidates for securing their return, nor may the candidate be directly held responsible for the acts of his supporters, other than his qualified agents; yet the "honors obtained," the flower so much exertion is made to pluck from the political field, must forever carry with it either the perfume of honesty and clean hands in gathering, or the odor of corruption and decay, as given by soiled hands and unclean methods; and in accepting and rewarding the services of the laborer, the bearer of the flower, from the lowest to the highest, clothes himself to stand before the world in garments made pleasant and acceptable by their purity and cleanliness, or hideous and abhorrent by the imprint of the cloven foot: "Unclean," "unclean." The ballot is the primary and only guarantee held by the citizen for the protection of his rights as such, and should be cast free alike from coercion or undue influence. So well recognized is the fact that the most severe penalties are found embodied in our laws for any infringements on this right by any candidate or elector. Are governments exempt from like restraint, or punished for like infringements? As to the future of this particular district, it mattered but little whether the government had a majority of 17 to 7, or 16 to 8, they still had too great a majority for the welfare of the province; but the principles taught, and the precedent established by the government candidate in the late campaign, do matter exceedingly; are in fact a direct blow at the very foundation of our freedom, rights and liberty. When a candidate can come out boldly and say "unless you elect me, a Government supporter, as your representative, you need not look for any aid from that Government." When this is backed by the assertion equally as boldly made, "that in a district where an opposition member held a seat, the appropriations for the past for that district would have been largely augmented—at least, if not double, had they but elected instead a supporter of the Government." When on and before the day of election telegrams are shown indicating the assured majority for the Government, and the fertility of electing any but a supporter—when these methods obtain, and these statements are boldly and confidently made, what is the principle taught? Is it coercion or bribery? Is it not both? Are the wants of a district such as Kootenay is to-day, with over four hundred registered voters on its list, a district which has within the past two years paid such an enormous revenue into the treasury of the province—which only needs aid in prospecting and opening up its vast mineral resources to add yet more largely to that revenue—are these wants to be openly held over the heads of the electors as a cudgel to compel them to add one more to an already too large majority—one more to the number who find it a paying investment to spend $5,000 or $6,000 in obtaining a position worth on the face of it $400 a year? The question has been answered at the polls. The seed was freely spread, freely irrigated, and the plant has already sprouted forth to bloom its quadrennial existence, spreading perfume or miasma, the reader must judge for himself which. But the time for reaping cometh, and to those who would put their house in order. Every government on the face of the earth shows in its past history, written in characters of ruin and even bloodshed, "that as ye sow so shall ye reap." PHŒNIX.

THE KOOTENAY ELECTION.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE TIMES:

SIR,—I read with considerable amusement a communication in the Colonist of the 16th inst., which for prevarication of facts is worthy of the writer, who has shown his cloven foot by the transparency of his maudlin effusion. He tells the truth when he says Mr. Brown is popular, which is more than can be by any possibility be said of him. How barefacedly he lies, when he states that Mr. Brown's friends were instrumental in getting the prisoners to vote. He cannot deny that Judge Sproat informed the returning officer and the agents of the candidates in the polling booth that those two prisoners were qualified to vote, as they have not been incarcerated for any felonious offence. He cannot deny that shortly afterwards, the Revelstoke postmaster, Mr. Baker's agent, spoke to the prisoners across the fence concerning the votes, and when they expressed the opinion that they would not be allowed to vote, he directed them to enter by the back door and he would see that they were allow to vote. They accordingly did as Mr. Gordon directed. (One of them is irons.) Mr. Baker's agent of course would not object, and Mr. Brown's did not because he considered it useless. Mr. Brown and his friends fought their battle in an honest and honorable way. They did not resort to raising false reports concerning their opponents, nor did they resort to the extravagant distribution of whisky as did Mr. Baker's party. If Mr. Baker has weighted himself with the cares of state he has certainly lightened his purse to a considerable extent. I think it is about time that post-masters were taught that it is out of place for them to make themselves conspicuous at elections as the post-master of Revelstoke has done.

To-day's Despatches

THE DILKE CASE.

LONDON, July 22.—Capt. Foster was a witness in the Crawford-Dilke case today and admitted he had been guilty of adultery with Mrs. Crawford. He once quarreled with Sir Charles, and called him a liar, scoundrel and coward because he had secretly attempted to sever relations between Mrs. Crawford and witness. He also attempted to thrash Sir Charles, but decided, at Mrs. Rogerson's entreaty not to do so. Mrs. Rogerson was here recalled. She denied the statements just made by Capt. Foster. Matthews then addressed the jury in behalf of the petitioner. Crawford, who the lawyer described was the one who emerged clean from amidst this plentiful throwing off the foulest mud. The lawyer ridiculed Dilke's reason for remaining silent during the process of the trial when there was produced against him so strong and damaging evidence of brutal adultery. Matthews did not mince matters; he described things in the vernacular with such power as to intensely excite Dilke who became livid with rage and twice jumped to his feet and essayed to speak at which the judge prevented him from doing so.

THE YACHT GALATEA.

BOSTON, July 22.—The English yacht Galatea has not yet been sighted. She has been out more than 24 days. Ordinarily she should make the passage from Southampton to Marblehead in 21 days. Allowing 2 days for delay on account of fogs and head winds she should have been in last Tuesday.

THE QUEEN ACCEPTS.

LONDON, July 21.—Gladstone at 2 o'clock this afternoon, received from the Queen her acceptance of the resignations of himself and his ministers. So soon as his messenger returned from Osborne he notified his colleagues of Her Majesty's decision. He will not proceed to Osborne to personally surrender to the Queen the seals of office until Her Majesty shall have appointed his successor.

It is officially announced that the Queen will summon Salisbury to form a new ministry. Salisbury is due here to-morrow.

THE CRAWFORD-DILKE CASE.

LONDON, July 21.—Mrs. Crawford resumed her testimony to-day in the Crawford divorce case. She said that Sir Charles Dilke declared that Mrs. Rogerson, at whose house he used to meet witness, was his mistress. Mrs. Crawford asserted that she believed it was Mrs. Rogerson who wrote the anonymous letters accusing witness of adultery with Captain Foster, and that her object was to screen Dilke. Mrs. Ashton Dilke, sister of Mrs. Crawford, and sister-in-law to Sir Charles, testified that Sir Charles, after Mrs. Crawford had made her confession, suggested a quiet separation between her and her husband, and offered to contribute a number of servants. She testified that ladies secretly visited Sir Charles Dilke, and that he made regular assignations at the Warren street house. While Mrs. Crawford was testifying under cross-examination Capt. Foster entered the courtroom and was seen by her. She became less confident in her manner, and her replies were often made in a stammering way, after long pauses she, among other things said, that Sir Charles told her he had four mistresses.

PORT MOODY NOTES.

The hotels are all crowded and doing an excellent business. Nat. Darling, late of the Elgin house, thinks of opening a hotel in Gilbert's building.

Carter & Mitchel are burning their second kiln of bricks and will soon commence shipping.

The Pioneer Lumber Company is crowded with orders.

McGrinty & McFarland, sub-contractors on the Vancouver extension, have abandoned work and removed their plant, owing to being unable to proceed on account of the failure to secure the right of way.

Editor Logan, of the Gazette, and Charley Nilsen, manager of the Colonial hotel, New Westminster, left on Sunday's train for Harrison Lake Hot Springs. John Shennon has returned from there, cured in two weeks of a severe case of erysipelas.

The ship New York will receive in a day or two a barge load of coal from Nanaimo. This she will put in as ballast before discharging the remainder of her cargo and then proceed to Nanaimo to finish loading coal.

The Dominion Express Company have finished their office on the wharf.

POLICE COURT.

Bob Marwick, charged with stealing $37.50 from Eliza Hicks, a brazen-faced half-breed prostitute from Port Townsend, was discharged, the evidence of the complainant not being sufficiently direct to incriminate the prisoner. She told enough, however, to convince the bench that the morals of some of our young men are decidedly loose.

Richard Proctor, in the dock for stealing a ring, was again remanded, awaiting evidence.

Wm. Hague and Robert Marwick, on remand, charged with stealing four horses, the property of Van Volkenburgh & Co., were further remanded until Monday, to give counsel for the prosecution time to put in an appearance.

THE LUMBER INDUSTRY.

The lumber business at Port Moody has been very brisk all the season, and indications point to this state of things remaining permanent. The foreign business is becoming much better, and the large mills on Burrard Inlet are busy supplying the demand at satisfactory prices. The completion of the Canadian Pacific has greatly stimulated building operations in this province and the mills engaged in the local trade all have as much or more than they can do, most of them running overtime. In addition mill men are receiving enquiries in regard to lumber from the upper country, and now that regular traffic has been opened by the C. P. R. a large and profitable trade must undoubtedly be established there and in the Northwest. The lumber business is one of our chief resources, and we are pleased to see its prospects so bright. Saw mill property is safe property in this province.

Sherman Heck and family have returned to Seattle from Vancouver. Mr. Heck gives a gloomy account of the outlook for the Canadian harvests. He says but few people are coming in, and all who can get away are leaving. He lost everything he had by the fire, and is thankful to get back to Seattle with his health.

GLADSTONE RESIGNS THE PREMIERSHIP.

The announcement is cabled that yesterday Mr. GLADSTONE tendered the resignation of himself and his cabinet to Her Majesty who was graciously pleased to accept the same. The news was not unexpected, as no one possessed of the slightest knowledge of constitutional law and parliamentary practice could see that there was any other alternative for the Liberal government than to resign their portfolios for others. An appeal had been made to the great jury—the electorate of the United Kingdom—in which at least three millions of people recorded their ballots on the question, and a verdict of hostility to Mr. GLADSTONE's scheme, as enunciated by him on the 8th of last April, rendered. Notwithstanding this verdict it is very evident that the question of Home Rule for Ireland is only temporarily baulked, for come it must the day when the scheme will carry as triumphantly as did any of the great reform measures passed within the last half century. Home Rule then is not dead but sleepeth. The Tories do not control a majority in the Commons; HARTINGTON has declined a coalition, notwithstanding that every inducement was held out to him to do so by SALISBURY. It is believed the latter will now be called upon to form a government. His last effort at cabinet making was hardly a success, and it is not likely he will achieve greater renown on the present occasion. On all other questions except Home Rule SALISBURY will have a solid majority against him of the GLADSTONIANS, the PARNELLITES and the Unionists—a phalanx against which he cannot possibly cope. Another appeal will be made to the country under Tory regime, when it is expected a decisive verdict either for or against Home Rule will be rendered.

It was hoped by the Tories that GLADSTONE would modify his measure rather than resign. In this respect they judged the great statesman by themselves. They assumed that his action would be stained by the same duplicity and treachery with which they compensated their PARNELLITE co workers after last year's campaign. They imply that his high-minded vindication of Irish rights is, like the twaddling cajolery of CHURCHILL, a swindle and a sham. The opinion of those who know GLADSTONE best is that he will break no pledges and make no mistakes. No compromise upon the Irish question with the Liberal deserters is conceivable, except through large concessions, of which his Nationalist friends would have to pay the cost. But if he showed himself inflexible on their behalf throughout the long debate preceding the rejection of his bill on June 7—when, although implored by some of his less scrupulous adherents, he refused to abate a jot of what the Irish members deemed their dues—how indissoluble must be the ties of sympathy and gratitude that bind him to them now! Seldom, indeed, has more been risked for principle by any party chief than was risked by GLADSTONE in this concontest, but never has magnanimous devotion on the part of a commander been more splendidly repaid by those whom he befriended. Whenever on the changeable field of electoral contention the eye of the standard bearer meets a gleam of comfort and of cheer, he knows that Irishmen were there. Scarcely an inch of ground in Ireland was yielded by the Parnellites, for the seat lost in South Derry has been counterbalanced in Belfast. In Great Britain, though Gladstonians are driven from 59 seats held by them on June 7, they have in reprisal gained 23 which were at that date occupied by the premier's opponents. With two thirds of these victories the Irish friends of GLADSTONE must be credited. Yet not by such hard-won gains alone can the value of their aid be measured. No less than 50 British followers of the present government have managed to keep their former places by majorities so slight that the decisive influence of the Irish vote upon their fortunes is incontestable. On the part of Irishmen, at all events, there was not a sign of lukewarmness and of abstention. Mr. GLADSTONE will not overlook the fact, which has been vouched for by Mr. T. P. O'CONNOR, that while at least a third of the English Liberals registered held aloof from the ballot box, the Irish vote polled in Great Britain came within three per cent. of the registration. Are these the men to be thrown over or put off with counterfeit concessions for the sake of clinging to the empty distinction of an office, which, shorn for the moment of the power of achieving a grand purpose, would be but an encumbrance and a plague? Mr. GLADSTONE has fame to live for—an object characteristically lost sight of by his traducers, who impute their paltry office-seeking motives to the foremost English statesmen of the time. He has resigned his office, but we are persuaded that he will not, for the doubtful tenure of a post that he may soon regain, jeopard his firm place in the affections and the homage of the English-speaking world by wavering in one single jot or title. He will not abandon his best friends or cheapen the meed of their large merits to buy the grudging toleration of men who have deserted and reviled him. GLADSTONE intends to stand by Ireland as Irishmen have stood by him.

WHAT NEXT?

Every now and then a fresh rumor is put into circulation regarding Sir JOHN MACDONALD's health or his movements. The latest is that he contemplates winding up his Canadian career and betaking himself to the old country, there to become a member of the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council. Of course there is no truth in the story, but as a story it is not so bad and may interest the mariners. We may all make up our minds that Sir JOHN will end his days in this country. Here it is that he made his reputation, here it is that his hands have been busy in laying the foundation of the great nation that is to be, and here it is that the veteran will lay aside his harness and close his eyes. Men rarely make new friends at Sir JOHN's time of life. They may cling to old ones but they are not attracted by new ones. If Sir JOHN went to England to live he would be like a fish out of water. Besides his ambition does not tend that way. He would much rather be a big frog in a small puddle than a small frog in a big puddle, and therefore prefers Canada to England. A country that is good enough to live in is good enough to die in. In the meantime Sir JOHN contemplates seeing as much of it as he can, by means of the great railway which his paternal interest helped to call into existence. The completion of the Canadian Pacific Railway as well as its conception is attributable to the policy pursued by Sir JOHN, aided by as loyal a following as any leader of a government ever possessed. Had not such a liberal, enlightened course been followed by Sir JOHN it is quite certain that to-day he would not be speeding his way to this coast over the "Queen's great highway." The old chieftain's name is intertwined with the history of the country, it is to be found on every page, and no man who writes of Canada can afford to ignore the important part played on the stage of Canadian politics by Sir JOHN MACDONALD.

THE circulation of bogus news is a criminal offence in England. At the present time several persons are awaiting their trial in London for manufacturing harmless but false items of information, and sending them to the press association for publication. If it were crime to commit the same offence here, we could not find in the American press the reports which appears at regular intervals, dated from Ottawa, of intended Indian risings in the Canadian North west.

PRESIDENT CLEVELAND's policy in regard to civil service reform has always had two weak points. The first is his appointing to several important places—the New York Custom House is one of them—persons who were notoriously either not in sympathy with the reform or openly hostile to it. The second is his failure thus far to punish a single official for displaying his dislike of or contempt for the rules by disregarding or evading them.

THE conditions out of which grew the oleomargarine industry are well illustrated by the increasing demand for butter all over Europe from 1850 down, and the constantly advancing price. The prodigious advances in this direction may be further illustrated by the importation of butter, cheese and eggs into England. In the years from 1825 to 1830 the imports of the three commodities seldom exceeded in any one year £500,000 in value, while they have since risen to £20,000,000 per annum. Letting the facts do the reasoning it is apparent that the new industry—the production of wholesome substitutes for butter—was a simple necessity. Recognition of this fact must precede true progress in the important matter of regulating the industry.

THE present has been an extremely dry season over the entire North American continent. From every quarter come reports of grevous injury to crops from this source, and it is doubtful if upon the whole more than half an average will be realized. In our country the crops in the territories appear to have suffered most. In Manitoba there has been considerable damage done, but yet the returns are apparently more favorable than from any other portion of the continent. There is further consolation, grim though it may be, that the reports from the wheat growing countries not on this continent promise a poor crop. With a general shortage, high prices are almost certain to prevail. Already an upward movement is to be seen in Chicago, and a further advance may be looked for.

CITY COUNCIL.

The regular weekly meeting of the City Council was held last evening. Present: Mayor Fell and all the Councillors.

Minutes of former meeting read and approved.

COMMUNICATIONS.

From Hon. W. Smithe, acknowledging receipt of letter from City Clerk in regard to cutting thistles outside of city limits.

From W. C. S. Seeley, calling attention to the bad smell from leakage of gas at the north end of James Bay bridge. Ordered that the clerk notify the gas company.

From H. Rose, captain of H. M. S. Triumph, returning the $20 sent to the blue jackets for helping at the late fire, on the ground that the men considered that they had only done their duty and did not look for any remuneration. Received and filed, and a vote of thanks tended to the blue jackets.

From nine ratepayers, asking that the drain below the Empire Brewery be allowed to remain open for the use of cattle. Referred to the Street Committee with power to act.

From Shand, Mason & Co., London, enclosing catalogue of steam fire engines. Referred to Fire Wardens.

Account for use of theatre for reception of Hon. Mr. White, ($25) and for engrossing address ($20) were referred the Finance Committee, to be paid if found correct.

EXTRA HELP.

Councillor Vigelius referred to the account of P. Deasy of $2 per day for assisting at the engine when pumping for street sprinkling. The Mayor had refused to pay the account.

Mayor Fell said he had refused because he did not know that the man had been appointed by the council.

Councillor Higgins thought the firemen were not overworked and had time to attend to such duties. The system did not contemplate any extraordinary expenditure of this kind.

After considerable discussion the subject dropped.

KEEP OF PRISONERS.

The Finance Committee reported in favor of the payment of the account of the Provincial Government of $1731 50 for the keep of prisoners and gas for gaol up to 31st May last. Report was adopted.

On motion of Councillor Vigelius, P. Deasy was employed at $2 per day to work on the steam engine when pumping.

IRRIGATING.

Mr. T. Russell, water commissioner, reported that R. P. Rithet and C. E. Vernon allowed the water to run at all hours for irrigation, contrary to the by-law. On motion instructions were given to summon the offenders.

THE WATER WORKS BY-LAW.

The preamble of the by-law to raise by loan the sum of $75,000 for improving the water works was read and a motion made to go into committee of the whole.

Councillor Higgins objected to the by-law as it was crude and ill-digested. The estimates of Mr. Hendry should be checked by a competent engineer who had some knowledge of hydrostatics. While agreeing with the principle he thought the by-law should be so framed that it would commend itself to the ratepayers.

Councillor Grant thought the bylaw had only to be placed fairly before the people to be understood and ratified. There was no doubt in his mind that the revenue from the water works would be ample to meet the interest and sinking fund.

Councillor Robertson was opposed to the bylaw. It had been defeated before and would be again. The financial condition of the city was worse to-day than it was two years ago. He was opposed to the reservoir system altogether. The first need of the city was sewerage.

Councillor Lipsett was in favor of the bylaw, which he thought a very good one. The reservoir was the only system by which a full supply of water could be secured for the higher and lower levels of the city and if properly placed before the people they would undoubtedly carry it. The reservoir ought to be large enough to contain 3,000,000 gallons, which would give five days supply.

Councillor Humber said the citizens wanted more water and the council now proposed to give it to them if they would provide the money. The people were intelligent enough to understand the bylaw.

Councillor Barnard was surprised that there should be any opposition to the bylaw and congratulated Councillors Grant, Lipsett and Humber on the manner they had advocated it. Councillor Robertson should be thoroughly ashamed of the stand he had taken, and if he had no better arguments to advance he ought to leave the council. At present we had not sufficient pressure for suppressing fires, and property and lives were endangered. The fear of a little increased taxation, which was not possible, should not deter any person from voting for the bylaw.

Councillor Smith said Mr. Pickering, a competent engineer, had examined and checked Mr. Hendry's figures and approved of the system in toto. The object of the scheme was not to supply the higher levels at the expense of the lower; it was by the means of a reservoir to give an adequate supply to the lower and higher levels and for fire protection. The bylaw was the same as presented four years ago, with the exception that Mr. Hendry's scheme was now completely endorsed by a competent engineer. The revenue from the water works this year, over and above all expenses, would be $13,000, and it was absurd to suppose that the contemplated expense of $2000 per annum could not be met out of that surplus.

Councillor Higgins rose to move an amendment and was ruled out of order on the ground that he had spoken already.

Mayor Fell expressed himself in favor of the by-law but agreed with Councillor Higgins that it should be so placed before the people as not to be misleading. The motion to go into committee of the whole was adopted, Mayor Fell in the chair.

After a long discussion in committee it was agreed to defer action for one week with a view of remodelling the clause relating to one eighth of one per cent.

SIR JOHN MACDONALD.

A committee, composed of Councillors Grant, Higgins, Robertson, Lipsett and Barnard, were appointed by the Mayor to draft an address and arrange for a reception to Sir John A. Macdonald.

The Council then adjourned.

HENNING PETERS, late of the Lion Brewery, is now prepared to supply the trade and families with all kinds of Beer, Ale and Porter.

The Brewery is situated on Spring Ridge, and is built over a well of pure, ever running spring water. This fact enables me to manufacture the very finest brands, equal to any imported Ale, Beer and Porter.

The machinery used is of latest pattern, the ingredients are pure water, malt and hops, and a trial is only necessary to convince that the brands are the finest manufactured in the Province.

All orders for city supply, or for shipment to Island or Mainland points will receive prompt attention and a satisfactory article furnished.

MY LADY'S MONEY.

BY WILKIE COLLINS.

An Episode in the Life of a Young Girl.

CHAPTER X.

Returning to his office, Mr. Troy discovered, among the correspondence that was waiting for him, a letter from the very person whose welfare was still the uppermost subject in his mind. Isabel Miller wrote in these terms:

THE LAWN, SOUTH MORDEN, THURSDAY.

DEAR SIR: My aunt, Miss Pink, is very desirous of consulting you professionally at the earliest opportunity. Although South Morden is within little more than half an hour's railway ride from London, Miss Pink does not presume to ask you to visit her, being well aware of the value of your time. Will you, therefore, be so kind as to let me know when it will be convenient to you to receive my aunt at your office in London? Believe me, dear sir,

Respectfully yours,
ISABEL MILLER.

P. S.—I am further instructed to say that the regretable event at Lady Lydiard's house is the proposed subject of the consultation.

Mr. Troy smiled as he read the letter. "Too formal for a young girl," he said to himself. "Every word of it has been dictated by Miss Pink." He was not long in deciding what course he should take. There was a pressing necessity for cautioning Isabel, and here was his opportunity. He sent for his head clerk, and, looked at his list of engagements for the day. There was nothing set down in the book which the clerk was not quite as well able to manage as the master. Mr. Troy consulted his railway guide, ordered his cab and caught he next train to South Morden.

South Morden was then (and remains to this day) one of those primitive agricultural villages, passed over by the march of modern progress, which are still to be found in the near neighborhood of London. Only the slow trains stopped at the station; and there was so little to do that the station master and his porter grew flowers on the embankment, and trained creepers over the waiting room window. Turning your back on the railway, and walking along the one street of South Morden, you found yourself in the old England of two centuries since. Gabled cottages, with fast-closed windows; pigs and poultry in quiet possession of the road; the venerable church surrounded by its shady burial ground; the grocer's shop which sold everything, and the butcher's shop which sold nothing; the scarce inhabitants who liked a good look at a stranger, and the unfashionable children who were redolent of rude health; the clash of the iron-chained bucket in the public well, and the thump of the falling nine-pins in the skittle ground behind the public house; the horse pond on one bit of open ground and the old elm tree with the wooden seat round it on the other—these were some of the objects that you saw and some of the noises that you heard in South Morden, as you passed from one end of the village to the other.

About half a mile beyond the last of the old cottages modern England met you again under the form of a row of little villas, set up by an adventurous London builder who had bought the land at a bargain. Each villa stood in its own little garden, and looked across a stony road at the meadow lands and softly rising wooded hills beyond. Each villa faced you in the sunshine with the horrid glare of new red brick, and forced its nonsensical name on your attention, traced in bright paint on the posts of its entrance gate. Consulting the posts as he advanced, Mr. Troy arrived in due course of time at the villa called The Lawn, which derived its name apparently from a circular patch of grass in front of the house. The gate resisting his efforts to open it, he rang the bell.

Admitted by a trim, clean, shy little maid servant, Mr. Troy looked about him in silent amazement. Turn which way he might, he found himself silently confronted by posted and painted instructions to visitors, which forbade him to do this, and commanded him to do that, at every step of his progress from the gate to the house. On one side of the lawn a label informed him that he was not to walk on the grass. On the other side a painted hand pointed along a boundary wall to an inscription which warned him to go that way if he had business in the kitchen. On the gravel walk at the foot of the house steps words, neatly traced in little white shells reminded him not to "forget the scraper." On the door step he was informed, in letters of lead, that he was "Welcome!" On the mat in the passage bristly black words burst on his attention, commanding him to "wipe his shoes." Even the hat stand in the hall was not allowed to speak for itself: it had "Hats and Cloaks" inscribed on it, and it issued its directions imperatively in the matter of your wet umbrella—"Put it here!"

Giving the trim little servant his card, Mr. Troy was introduced to a reception room on the lower floor. Before he had time to look round him, the door was opened again from without, and Isabel stole into the room on tiptoe. She looked worn and anxious. When she shook hands with the old lawyer the charming smile that he remembered so well was gone.

"Don't say you have seen me," she whispered, "I am not to come into the room till my aunt sends for me. Tell me two things before I run away again. How is Lady Lydiard? And have you discovered the thief?"

"Lady Lydiard was well when I last saw her, and we have not yet succeeded in discovering the thief." Having answered the questions in those terms, Mr. Troy decided on questioning Isabel on the subject of the steward while he had the chance. "One question on my side," he said, holding her back from the door by the arm. "Do you expect Moody to visit you here?"

"I am sure he will visit me," Isabel answered, warmly. "He has promised to come here, at my request. I never knew what a kind heart Robert Moody had till this misfortune fell on me. My aunt, who is not easily taken with strangers, respects and admires him. I can't tell you how good he was to me on the journey here, and how kindly, how nobly, he spoke to me when we parted." She paused, and turned her head away. The tears were rising in her eyes. "In my situation," she said, faintly, "kindness is very keenly felt. Don't notice me, Mr. Troy."

The lawyer waited a moment to let her recover herself.

"I agree entirely, my dear, in your opinion of Moody," he said. "At the same time, I think it right to warn you that his zeal in your service may possibly outrun his discretion. He may feel too confidently about penetrating the mystery of the missing money, and, unless you are on your guard, he may raise false hopes in you when you next see him. Listen to any advice that he may give you, by all means; but before you decide on being guided by his opinion, consult my older experience and hear what I have to say on the subject. Don't suppose that I am attempting to make you distrust this good friend," he added, noticing the look of uneasy surprise which Isabel fixed on him. "No such idea is in my mind. I only warn you that Moody's eagerness to be of service to you may mislead him. You understand me?"

"Yes, sir," replied Isabel coldly; "I understand you. Please let me go now. My aunt will be down directly, and she must not find me here." She courtesied with distant respect and left the room.

"So much for trying to put two ideas together into a girl's mind," thought Mr. Troy, when he was alone again. "The little fool evidently thinks I am jealous of Moody's place in her estimation. Well, I have done my duty, and I can do no more."

He looked round the room. Not a chair was out of its place, not a speck of dust was to be seen. The brightly perfect polish of the furniture made your eyes ache; the ornaments on it looked as if they had never been touched by mortal hand; the piano was an object for distant admiration, not an instrument to be played on; the carpet made Mr. Troy look nervously at the soles of his shoes; and the sofa (protected by layers of white crochet work) said as plainly as it in words, "Sit on me if you dare!" Mr. Troy retreated to a bookcase at the farther end of the room. The books fitted the shelves; to such also it appeared that he had some difficulty in taking one of them out. When he had at length found himself in possession of a volume of the "History of England," On the flyleaf he encountered another written warning: "This book belongs to Miss Pink's Academy for Young Ladies, and is not to be removed from the library." The date, which was added, referred to a period of ten years since. Miss Pink now stood revealed as a retired school mistress; and Mr. Troy began to understand some of the characteristic peculiarities of that lady's establishment which had prevented him up to the present time.

He had just succeeded in putting the book back again when the door opened once more, and Isabel's aunt entered the room.

If Miss Pink could, by any possible conjuncture of circumstances, have disappeared mysteriously from her house and her friends, the police would have found the greatest difficulty in composing the necessary description of the missing lady. The acutest observer could have discovered nothing that was noticeable or characteristic in her personal appearance. The pen of the present writer portrays her in despair by a series of negatives. She was not young; she was not old; she was neither tall nor short, nor stout nor thin; nobody could call her features attractive, and nobody could call them ugly; there was nothing in her voice, her expression, her manner or her dress that differed in any appreciable degree from the voice, expression, manner and dress of five hundred thousand other single ladies of her age and position in the world. If you had asked her to describe herself, she would have answered, "I am a gentlewoman;" and if you had inquired which of her numerous accomplishments took highest rank in her own esteem, she would have replied, "My powers of conversation." For the rest, she was Miss Pink, of South Morden; and when that has been said, all has been said.

"Pray be seated, sir. We have had a beautiful day after the late long-continued wet weather. I am told that the season is very unfavorable for wall fruit. May I offer you some refreshment after your journey?" In these terms, and in the smoothest of voices, Miss Pink opened the interview.

Mr. Troy made a polite reply, and added a few strictly conventional remarks on the beauty of the neighborhood. Not even a lawyer could sit in Miss Pink's presence and hear Miss Pink's conversation without feeling himself called upon in the nursery phrase) to "be on his best behavior."

"It is extremely kind of you, Mr. Troy, to favor me with this visit," Miss Pink resumed. "I am well aware that the time of professional gentlemen is of especial value to them, and I will therefore ask you to excuse me if I proceed abruptly to the subject on which I desire to consult your experience."

Here the lady modestly smoothed out her dress over her knees, and the lawyer made a bow. Miss Pink's highly trained conversation had perhaps one fault—it was not, strictly speaking, conversation at all. In its effect on her hearers it rather resembled the contents of a finently conventional letter, read aloud.

RIGHT SIDE OF THE DOLLAR.

I've lived sixty years in this frisky old world,
An' seen lots of changin' an turnin',
An' fifty of them, by the sweat of my brow,
My bread an' my butter been earnin'.
An' I've larned many things, in the way of hard facts
(I never was any great scholar),
An' here's one for you. Whatever you do,
Young man—an,' young woman, I'm warnin' you too,—
Keep on the right side of the dollar.

No matter how much you may want this or that,
If you can't spare the money to buy it,
Don't run into debt, or you'll quickly regret
That you ever were tempted to try it.
Though your clothes may be white at the seams, an' you find
Rough edges on cuffs an' on collar,
Jest wait to get new till the same you can do,
Young man—an,' young woman, I'm warnin' you too—
An' keep on the right side of the dollar.

Oh, the strifes an' the troubles that would be like weeds,
Cut down in their pestilent growin',
An' the blessin's, like beautiful flow'rs, that folks
In their stead would be constantly sowin'!
Oh, the homes an' the lives that wouldn't be lost,
If all this plain precept would foller
That I lay down to you! Whatever you do,
Young man—an', young woman, I'm warnin' you too—
Keep on the right side of the dollar.

Novel Appliances of the Manicure.

"The work of the manicure is very little understood," said an "operator" to a reporter. "There are many things of this nature which people in common know very little about. Now, here is one instrument which will interest you. Suppose a person has a badly shaped nose; it is too broad. This little appliance is placed on the organ and screwed up tightly. It compresses the nostrils closely together and tends to cause them to contract. A person who uses it must sleep with it on, and must breathe through his mouth."

The appliance exhibited was made of two pieces of metal, bent almost at a right angle, and covered with white kid. These two pieces were operated by two thumb screws, and when placed on the nose they could be tightly screwed up, so as to compress that organ.

"Here is another appliance," remarked the lady. "This is to be used by a person whose ears project too conspicuously from his head. Funny, isn't it?"

This appliance was a piece of steel bent to the head and covered with white kid. This fitted from the back of the neck to the frontal bone. Attached to it, on either side, was a spring strip of steel, to the ends of which a double cross or little bars were attached. These crosses, or bars, covered the ears, and the spring pressed them tightly against the head. The machine is quite a substitute for a nightcap.

"Our customers," said the lady, "come from the highest class of people, for this treatment is a luxury. We are patronized by actors and society people mostly, and I think that they find great satisfaction in their visits to a manicure.—Boston Herald.

Replacing the Goldie & McCulloch Safe, Gent.

SIR,—We the undersigned having witnessed the terrible fire which wiped out of existence the young city of Vancouver, on the 13th inst., have, after the fire, examined the safe sold by you, some of which were put to the most severe test, having been surrounded by large quantities of lard and bacon, and we are pleased to testify to the remarkable manner in which every Safe sold by you preserved its contents, not only books and papers, but also thousands of dollars in paper money were taken out in perfect condition. We can, therefore, with the greatest confidence, recommend them as thoroughly fire proof.

DR. VANMONCISCAR,

THE WELL-KNOWN

SPECIALIST,

Proprietor & Consulting Physician of the Only Private Dispensary on the Pacific Coast, now permanently located at 132, 134, Third Street, Portland, Or.

DR. VANMONCISCAR has made the treatment of Private Diseases of Men a special study and practice for many years. Over 4000 cases treated yearly. Recent cases of private diseases cured in a short time. Ulcers, Humors and Blotches on Face or Body cured without giving Mercury or other Poisons. Mercury is the curse of the human race. Your children will suffer from its effects. Avoid it as you would avoid any deadly Drug, and use no more. These diseases are being cured at this Dispensary without Mercury.

is a graduate of a regular Medical College, is well known over the United States and Canada by and it is a well known fact that for years he has confined himself to the study and treatment of Sexual and Chronic Diseases, thus giving him advantages for curing. Dr. Vanmoncisca addresses himself particularly to those who have already tried various physicians and remedies from whom they have received no benefit, and who, in fact, have done them more harm than good. Medicine, like all other sciences, is progressive, and every year shows proof of the advancement and introduction of remedies of great curative power. Dr. Vanmoncisca has so arranged his treatment that it will afford not only immediate relief, but permanent cures.

YOUNG MEN

who are suffering from the effects of youthful indiscretions showing some of the following symptoms: Nervous and Physical Debility, Impotency, Unnatural Lost Manhood, Abuses of the system, Exhausted Vitality, Confusion of Ideas, Dull and Loss of Brilliancy in the Eye, Aversion to Society, Despondency, Pimples on the Face, Loss of Energy, and Frequency of Blushing. You may be in the first stages, but remember you are fast approaching the last. Do not let false pride and shame modesty deter you from attending to your ailments. Many a bright and naturally gifted young man, endowed with genius, has permitted his case to run on and on, until remorse racked his intellect, and finally death claimed its victim. Remember that "Procrastination is the thief of time." Solve your false pride, and consult one who thoroughly understands your ailment, and who will know your case, and find permanent relief for an ailment that has made days a drudgery and night hideous. Thousands upon thousands of men in good standing in the social world, of prominence in the world are today suffering from the fruits of their doings, the seeds of which were sown during moments to thoughtlessness. Young man turn and gaze upon thy companion, or seek the mirror for proof to substantiate this fact. Oh! could he control the grim of Fate, or bid he his life to live again, then I would not appeal to you more sincerely. Let your mind wander back to the much cherished counsels of a loving father, and remember what you are to-day. Though you may for the present fill you station in society, the time is as inevitable as fate when your brilliancy will, like a flash, depart, leaving you a stranded wreck—desolate, forgotten and lost; so embrace the opportunity and enjoy life and happiness longer. If you claim to be a man, act your part manfully. Do not commit yourself with the thought that Nature will help itself, for in doing so you not only fan the flame, but wreck Nature and yourself, a firmember, "Large oaks from little acorns grow;" "Little ills germinate fatal diseases."

Middle-aged Men,

married or single, who are prematurely old as a result of excesses or youthful follies, and who are troubled by too frequent evacuation of the bladder, often accompanied by a slight smarting or burning sensation, and finding a deposit of ropy sediment in the urine, and sometimes small particles of albumen will appear, or the color will first be of a thin or milkish hue, and again changing to a dark or turbid appearance, causing nervous debility and loss of Vitality. Remember, this is the second stage of Seminal Weakness, in all such cases a perfect cure is guaranteed, and a radical restoration of the Genito-Urinary Organs. All interviews and letters are sacredly confidential. Prices packed so as not to excite curiosity, and sent by express, if full description of case is given; but one personal interview is all upon preferred. Patients treated by mail or monthly. Call early and avoid crowding. Office hours: 9 A. M. to 9 P. M.; Sundays, 10 A. M. to 2 P. M.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

While the TIMES is always prepared to give publicity to the views of correspondents on any question of interest to the public, provided facts are given, couched in unobjectionable language, we wish it to be understood that we do not hold ourselves responsible for the views expressed by the writers thereof.

Nor can we give room to duplicates of letters that have appeared in our contemporaries either in this city or elsewhere in the province. Correspondents, therefore, will save time and trouble in preparing such for THE TIMES, as they will be rejected.

Our space is valuable, and brevity, as far as possible, should be observed in writing on any topic, and on ONE SIDE of the sheet only.

—The Seattle Reds are doing a good deal of bragging about being able to do up any base ball team north of 'Frisco. They can't knock the Amities out on Beacon Hill. They know it, too.

—An order-in-council has been passed declaring that books printed in any of the languages or dialects of any Indian tribes of the Dominion shall be admitted free of duty.

—The Portland Oregonian "points out to absconders the quiet and rapid transit to British Columbia from the United States." The road back again is just as quiet and rapid and was used the day before yesterday by a barkeeper. It will be a red-letter day for the U. S. and the Dominion when laws are so framed as to make common cause of all criminals.

CRICKET EXTRAORDINARY.

Sides were chosen yesterday at Beacon Hill with the result of a most remarkable game, the leading feature of which was the highest individual innings ever played in the province. Mr. J. W. Sinclair carried his bat through the innings of his side for 126 runs, his figures being five fives, six fours, eight threes, twelve twos, and twenty-nine singles. With the exception of a very hard return to the bowler at 116, he gave not the shadow of a "chance," and his hitting and defence were of equal excellence. Such a performance upon matting in default of turf has rarely, if ever, been equalled. Moreover, the 208 runs were made in exactly two hours—a rate of scoring rarely sustained for such a time and still more rarely by any one bateman on a ground without "boundaries"—and Mr. Sinclair supplemented his splendid effort by immediately bowling 55 balls for 19 runs and 3 wickets. Of the bowlers on the same side, Drake had 4 wickets for only 7 runs and Gulline 3 for 18; while for the defeated, Charles took 3 for 28 and Handcock 3 for 43. The last named also hit vigorously, getting two fives and two fours while Petch assisted him in a good stand for the second wicket. The minor contributions to the 131 runs victory of Grafton, Palmer, and Gerforth were well obtained. Fo o ring is the score:

HE SKEDADDLES.

Yesterday afternoon reports were circulated around town about the sudden disappearance of a certain dandy young man and on further inquiry the party was learned to be an individual employed as bar-keeper, book-keeper and a kind of a sub-manager in the Vancouver House, Yates street, conducted by Mr. B. Wrede. While in this city he went by the name of C. Eppenetter, but it is a question whether that is his real name. He made numerous friends while here, being liberal and affable. He was the chief promoter of the Summer Night Festival held about a month ago and seemed to be enterprising. A few days ago Mr. Wrede went to Vancouver on business leaving this pirate in charge of the hotel, and during that time he "doctored" the books. Bills were entered as paid that were not paid. He also collected board money due, appropriated the bar receipts and then went for the safe which he depleted. His peculations are supposed to aggregate $700. A few days before decamping he received a letter from a woman in Butte City, Montana, with whom he formerly associated and this seems to have hurried his departure. His crime is a breach of trust and nothing can be done to him when over the line; but it is only another case of a stranger having unlimited confidence placed in him and then betraying his master. Victoria would hardly be itself unless this kind of thing happened about twice a year. We will get used to it bye and bye and give oily-tongued strangers, without character or references, a wide berth.

THE OTHER SIDE.

The property owners at Port Moody, who were instrumental in placing an injunction on the construction of the railway through their lots, say that if the company had shown a disposition to treat them fairly no steps would have been taken to protect their rights. For lots that cost their owners $750 and upwards, the paltry sum of $15 per lot was offered by the company. There are said to be many cases of the kind. In no instance did the company offer as much for these lots as the original cost of clearing them. The owners are naturally indignant that after being deceived as to the permanency of Port Moody as the terminus, that such prices should be offered. Anything within reason, they say, would be accepted; but rather than accept the insignificant sum mentioned they would prefer sacrificing every dollar they have invested. The injunction can be removed any day by paying a moderate value for the right of way.

UNFAIR TREATMENT.

Since confederation close upon $170,000 has been expended upon the Collingwood harbor by the Dominion. Owen Sound has been liberally dealt with; so also has Southampton and Kincardine, while Goderich harbor, during Mr. Mackenzie's regime, was completely changed at a great expense. A large appropriation was recently voted for Bayfield, a small and unimportant harbor on Lake Huron. Victoria, which contributes more to the Dominion's exchequer than all the ports of Lakes Huron and Superior combined, has to be satisfied with a grant of a few thousands yearly. The fault, however, lies with our own people in quietly submitting to such unfair treatment at the hands of the Ottawa authorities.

THROUGH FROM JAPAN.

While in Toronto last week, Mr. W. C. Van Horne stated that besides the vessels from Japan which were on their way loaded with tea, there was another on the way from Yokohama loaded with straw and fancy goods. The first vessel should arrive at Port Moody this week, and these vessels would in all have about three hundred and fifty car loads of freight to pass over the Canadian Pacific.

BARGAINS! BARGAINS!

On account of my new place of business not being yet ready for occupancy, I shall continue my clearance sale of Groceries at the old stand, corner of Douglas and Cormorant streets, for one week longer. Will sell good Tea, Green, Black or Mixed, for 25 cents per pound; best Roll Butter, 75 cents; best light brown Sugar, 12 lbs. for $1; 11 lbs. of the best Granulated Sugar for $1, and all other goods in proportion. Give us a call.

N. PRUTMAN.

THE REVELSTOKE FIRE.

Mr. G. B. Wright arrived from Revelstoke last night. He says that the burning of his buildings and stock was quite as disastrous as at first reported. Although the men in charge had warning of its approach, the fire traveled over two miles of intervening space with such rapidity that very little could be saved, and that only in a damaged condition. The total loss was about $150,000, about half covered by insurance. The fire did not get across the river to the town.

FOR UTAH.

The two Nash children, whose mother was burned in the Vancouver fire, arrived down by the Yosemite. The father is still in the hospital, and the children are on their way to relatives in Utah.

MUSICAL LESSONS.

Mrs. Miller will resume all lessons on Tuesday, the 27th inst.

Mr. W. Finley Hall, of Messrs. Hall & Quackenbush, estate brokers, Vancouver and Seattle, was in the city this morning. He left for the south at noon by the Sound steamer. Mr. Hall reports business with his firm as very lively in Vancouver real estate transactions.

Mr. Jas. Tilt, Q. C., an eminent barrister of Toronto, arrived from the east today.

A SISTERS' HOSPITAL.

A Roman Catholic hospital will soon be erected in New Westminster. The new building will be 40x80 feet, 3 stories high, with stone basement 8 feet high, and the estimated cost is $20,000. Of this sum the Bishop has subscribed $1500 and the balance is to be raised by the Sisters. It is stated that the management of the hospital will be free from sectarianism, patients belonging to all religious denominations being admitted freely.

CEDAR HILL SCHOOL.

Mr. D. E. Kerr has received the appointment of teacher for the above school, and will enter upon his duties on the 1st of August. Mr. Kerr received his educational training in Woodstock, Ont. Is a native of the township of Zora, which has produced more divines and professional gentlemen than any other township in Canada. He has not been a resident of this province for any length of time, and for four months taught the Metchosin school.

CHEAP FREIGHT.

The Northern Pacific, for which Mr. Robert Irving is still the efficient British Columbia representative, is not going to strike its colors for some time yet. Five car loads of salmon were shipped for eastern Canada to-day over this popular route at the remarkably low rate of $1.02½ per hundred. We believe it is to be the policy of the Northern to retain its trade with Victoria in spite of all opposition.

EXCURSION TO-NIGHT.

Remember the mid-summer excursion this (Thursday) evening, on the steamer Amelia, leaving Turner, Beeton & Co.'s wharf at 7:30, and after a sail of three hours down the Straits will return at 10:30 o'clock. A band of music will be on board. There will also be dancing for those who wish to "trip it on the light fantastic." Tickets only 50 cts.

MUSIC.

The band of the Triumph will perform the following at Beacon Hill next Saturday:

Overture	Light Cavalry		Suppe
Selection	Maritana		Wallace
Valse	Dolores		Waldteufel
Selection	Welsh Aire		Mansen
Gavotte	Secret Love		Resch
Galop	Princess Marie		D'Albert

God Save the Queen.

RUMORS OF PROTESTS.

The air is full of rumors of protests and counter protests against the election of members to the Legislature. The returning officer for Victoria made his return on the first or second day following the election, and the officer for Victoria District made his to-day.

NEW WESTMINSTER BRANCH.

The work on the New Westminster branch is progressing rapidly. It is expected that the rails will be laid into the city in the course of a week, and almost immediately thereafter the snort of the locomotive will make music in the ears of the royal burghers.

BAD RUN.

The fishermen on the Fraser are anxiously looking for the salmon run, which is ten days behind time. The canneries are now five thousand cases behind last year's production at this date. The high water is supposed to delay the appearance of the fish.

THE BOAT RACE.

A forfeit of $100 for the boat race between Bush and Paine was put up last night. The race is for a purse of $500 and will be run in about three months.

—Two letters await "M" in this office.

—If you want a modern building, have your plans made by Fisher the Architect.*

—"Sawmill's" advertisement in another column offers a good chance for investment.

—The Supt. of Education has decided to cancel the privilege of granting temporary certificates to teachers.

—Mrs. Youman's address last night on the temperance question, was one of the finest efforts of the kind ever heard in Victoria. She speaks again to-morrow night.

—Mr. Stuart Cumberland, in response to numerous requests that have been made to him, has consented to give a seance at Philharmonic Hall on Sunday evening next.

OUR FOREIGN TRADE.

The Montreal Gazette is of the opinion that the traffic between Japan and Canada will considerably swell the totals of this year's trade and navigation returns when in the course of time they reach the public. The first vessel from Yokohama to Vancouver in connection with the Canadian Pacific route, the Wallace B. Flint, sailed on the 20th of last month and may soon be expected at her destination; but before her arrival there will be in her wake another ship freighted for the same port. A circular from Messrs. Frazar & Co., of New York, announces the sailing on the 10th instant of the Flora P. Stafford on the same route with a full cargo, and the chartering of the Zoroyo to load teas, straw, braid, etc., at Hiogo and Yokohama for the Pacific terminus, her freight being destined for Eastern Canada and United States points. The same firm is also arranging for the despatch of a fourth vessel early in August. This may be called a good beginning, and though, of course, there will be no return freight from the Dominion for the Mikado's kingdom, the benefit to this country will be a decided consideration.

RETURNS THANKS.

The unfortunate bandsman of the Triumph, who received a benefit at Temperance Hall last Saturday night, returns his heartfelt thanks to those who officiated and attended.

FIRE INQUEST.

An inquest into the cause of the recent fire on Government street will be held to-morrow afternoon at 2 o'clock, before Mr. E. Johnson, S. M., and a jury. The investigation is held at the instance of the insurance companies interested.

Among the passengers on board the first direct train to the Pacific were the Marquis de Boishebert and his two young cousins, Messrs. de Raimbouville, all three gentlemen from Normandy, who will establish a ranche at Calgary.
